Editor:

Outstanding piece in the Journal ("35 Days in the Forum," Feb. 26.) So thoroughly researched and enlightening. You did a beautiful job of explaining the depth of the issues and conveying the cultural context and expression of Unified Students' sit-in.

I was at the Bolman Forum for the last day of the Native American Activism Conference. Tia Oros-Peters talked about the importance of never giving up. Jacqueline Bolman told the story of her inspiration to serve the students. I got to witness the students honor Jacquelyn, rename the Forum and announce the sit-in. I was so impressed with the way it all came down. The Unified Students are doing an absolutely stunning job of building the support they need to be taken seriously. I suspect the real threat Jacquelyn posed was her success in teaching the students to be skilled activists.

Thank you for covering their story.

Dana Silvernale, Blue Lake

Thanks, but Dig Deeper

Editor:

I think the Journal is a most valuable media source for "politics, people and arts."

The recent article "Settled out of Court" (Feb. 26) was most informative and, having once filed a civil rights lawsuit myself, I am well aware that the largest cost to defendants in the wrong, who won't settle out of court and force the plaintiffs to trial as was the case in this story, is the attorneys' fees.

A compelling argument for further examination in both the '64 Flood ("When the Waters Rose," Dec. 4) and the Korb Mill ("Goodnight, Korb," Feb. 5) articles was made in the recent in-depth analysis and critique offered by "Fritz Wunderplot" at www.stingingmettle.wordpress.com, along with some revealing photos! Much of that material could/should have been in the Journal's articles.

It is not my intention to beat up on the Journal or other local media, but legitimate issues are raised in his critique. I only wish Fritz had bothered to submit his observations on Green Diamond, as well as an in-depth article on the true causes of the damage of the '64 flood, for publication in the Journal itself instead of or at least before posting them online. I'm not sure he fully appreciates that the Journal and its colleagues in the news media are habitually understaffed with ever shrinking budgets; or realizes just how receptive the local press is to guest editorials and/or submissions from freelancers.

Both parties missed opportunities here to better inform the public.

Comment of the Week

"Jack Sewell made a valiant run and had some great shows, have fun making your own work, the gallery will be missed."

— Norman Sherfield, commenting on the announcement that Sewell Gallery is closing.

Internet for streaming (very iffy) or satellite networks like Dish and DirectTV. The latter we unplugged when we had to pay extra for the channels we really wanted. We now use an antenna. No monthly charge and we get most of the major networks like NBC, ABC, CBS, PBS and a few more. I was able to watch the Oscars and I can watch Scandal so I'm mostly happy.

I understand your excellent points about our lack of freedom and the subversive control that is going on. I look forward to your articles each week in the Journal.

Eureka Dies Fighting Fire

A Eureka man died after falling 15 feet off a ladder while fighting a fire at his home on March 6.

According to Humboldt Bay Fire, 58-year-old David Maxon was using a hose to attempt to put out a fire in the chimney area of his two-story Victorian in the 200 block of Long Street. The fire is believed to have been started by wood stove embers that landed on the building's roof.

CRIME / OUTDOORS

Skull Found on Eel River

Blue Slide Road resident Chris Ghidinelli was cutting a new ATV path through the brush on his way back from his favorite Eel River fishing hole on March 9, when something caught his eye. It was round and white, with two molars jutting from the upper jaw — as an experienced outdoorsman, Ghidinelli immediately knew these were not the remains of a deer or bear. It was a human skull.

"I don't think it could have been there that long," said Ghidinelli, who visits the site often. "I think it must have washed down from upstream. It was half-buried in the sand and caught by a willow branch."

Ghidinelli called his find into the county coroner's office. Deputy Coroner Trevor Enright confirmed the remains are human but, pending examination by the department's anthropologist, could not identify the sex, age or ethnic background of the deceased. A press release is forthcoming.

The skull was found just upstream from Howe Creek. The area will be examined by a forensics team at a later date. Enright confirmed that it was the first such find of 2015.

Mauluga Re-Signs

Former Eureka Logger Rey Mauluga recently inked a three-year contract extension with the Cincinnati Bengals.

The Bengals drafted Mauluga in the second round of the 2009 NFL Draft and watched him develop into a defensive cornerstone for the team, despite his being slowed by knee and hamstring injuries in the last two years. Coach Marvin Lewis described Mauluga as a "physical force" and a "great teammate" in a press release announcing the contract extension, and Defensive Coordinator Paul Guenther raved about him to the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mauluga graduated from Eureka High School in 2004, after leading the Loggers to a 20-2-1 record in his junior and senior seasons, which included a North Coast Section championship. After bringing national attention to Eureka High School, Mauluga attended University of Southern California, where he earned All American honors and won the 2008 Chuck Bednarik Award, given annually to the nation's best defensive player.

Mauluga's play has steadily improved after an unimpressive rookie NFL season. ESPN notes opposing running backs averaged just 3.6 yards per carry against the Bengals last year when Mauluga was on the field and 4.9 yards when he was not. In his five-year career, he's recorded 482 tackles, four sacks, six forced fumbles and five interceptions.

Mauluga still has family in Humboldt, and the long-haired, tattoo-covered 28-year-old has been spotted out and about locally in recent weeks visiting with friends. The terms of his new contract haven't been disclosed, but Mauluga made $2.25 million in 2014, the last year of two-year extension signed in 2012.

ART

So Long, Sewell Gallery

You've got precious little time to take a good last look around Sewell Gallery of Fine Art. The gallery, opened in June of 2011, will be shutting its glass doors at the end of April. Owner Jack Sewell said the gallery simply isn't selling enough work to pay for its overhead.

The large space on F Street in Eureka is often thronged for openings and has featured many heavy hitters in the local art scene. Elizabeth Berrien, George Bucquet, Duane Flatmo, Micki Dyson-Flatmo, Orr Marshall, Jim McVicker, Curtis Otto and Rachel and Stock Schlueter are among the long list of artists the gallery has shown.

Sewell says that he's enjoyed working with the artists, many of whom are friends, and he hopes someone else will have better luck with the space. He'll return to making art himself, which running the gallery has kept him from for the most part. "I miss doing my own artwork," he says. One of his pieces is a gently moving, silvery outdoor sculpture at the foot of C Street. He says with a wry laugh, "I'll go hunting around California for representation, too, 'cause now I don't have a place to show anymore."

For right now, Sewell is hosting the March show, featuring paintings by Georgia Long and Gary Bloomfield, and calling artists to cancel scheduled shows. The final show, opening in April, will showcase the wood fired ceramics of Conrad Calimpong and surrealist paintings by Catherine Brooks.

Coroner Consolidation Costs County

Supes say service more important, savings may materialize

By Thadeus Greenson

thad@northcoastjournal.com

The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously on March 10 to approve an almost $15,000 pay bump for Sheriff Mike Downey to compensate him for the extra duties he's taken on since the Coroner-Public Administrator Office was consolidated under his office on Feb. 1.

But Downey said he wants to make clear, he didn't ask for the raise that brought his base salary up to $163,968.

"This is compensation for taking on a new agency," he said. "I'm not asking for a pay raise, I'm asking to be compensated for taking on a whole new department."

Including benefits, the 10-percent pay increase will cost the county a total of $19,569 annually, according to a staff report, which made some simplistic and questionable claims regarding the projected budget savings associated with consolidation. The item passed after less than 15 minutes of conversation from the board, during which all said the move to consolidate the office was about providing better service to the public and helping staff, not budget savings.

But talk of potential budget savings has long peppered the conversations that surrounded whether to consolidate one of the state's last independently elected coroner positions — which Humboldt County has had for more than a century — and was one of the focal points of the staff report for the board's March 10 meeting.

Former Coroner Dave Parris announced back in November, four months after being elected to another four-year term, that he would be retiring effective Jan. 30 (For more on Parris' reasoning, read "Last Rites," Sept. 25). In the announcement, Parris recommended that his office be consolidated with that of the sheriff, saying his office was chronically understaffed, leaving employees overworked. In short order, the supervisors voted unanimously to follow Parris' recommendation, noting that 48 of California's 58 counties had consolidated their coroners' offices and that the move would come with an anticipated budget savings for the county.

Since the offices consolidated officially Feb. 1, the coroner's duties have been under the direct supervision of Sheriff's Sgt. Ernie Stewart, who's serving as chief deputy coroner. The supervisors also funded a deputy sheriff position to help staff the office.

The staff report notes that, prior to consolidation, the county funded the coroner-public administrator position at about $8,715 a month. With the new deputy position funded at about $4,887 a month and Downey's bump of $1,242, the county's still operating at net savings, the staff report says. If those numbers were the only additional costs, the county would, in fact, see a savings of $2,586 a month.

But, the staff report leaves out a few things — most notably, Stewart's new role in the coroner's office. While Stewart's salary was already on the books and isn't a new expenditure, he does represent a new person in the coroner's office and one less in the sheriff's office, which Downey and others have also lamented as understaffed. According to www.transparentcalifornia.com, Stewart made just over $80,000 in salary in 2013, not including overtime pay ($22,800) and benefits ($32,400). That's a $6,671 per month salary.

Additionally, there are benefits for the new deputy that, according to Transparent California, will run roughly $28,000 annually, or $2,333 per month.

So, it seems a more accurate accounting of the monthly costs of the consolidation are $7,220 for the deputy alone. Then there's Stewart's $9,371 per month in benefits and salary. And now Downey's monthly increase of $1,630. That brings the coroner's office's additional monthly expenditures to $18,221.

To be fair, the county wasn't comparing apples to oranges. The monthly salary the staff report says Parris was taking home — $8,715 — didn't include benefits either. In 2013, according to Transparent California, Parris got about $28,250 in benefits, bringing his monthly cost to the county to $11,069.

Instead of saving money, as was billed, one could argue the county will actually be paying an extra $7,152 a month to carry out its post-consolidation coroner functions. And those are just the immediate ongoing costs, not taking into account the one-time $26,700 allocated for pre-consolidation training or the long-term pension impacts (if Downey finishes his current term, this pay bump will increase his pension about $13,000 a year, according to the Journal's calculations).

Downey has said he plans to bring in a coroner's crew from outside the county to investigate if any of his officers are involved in a shooting to avoid the appearance of a conflict of interest. It's unclear how much that would cost.

Now, one can argue that the coroner's office was woefully understaffed, as Parris did, and that the very reason for consolidation was to bring in extra help, like the new deputy to enter the call rotation with the three existing deputy coroners and Stewart to take over administrative duties. That's essentially two people stepping in to do Parris' job and help out elsewhere, probably a welcome addition to a stretched department.

And there's a chance this pencils out in the end. In 2013, the office's three deputy coroners — Charles Van Buskirk, Trevor Enright and Roy Horton — combined to earn more than $45,000 in overtime pay. If having a sheriff's deputy in the rotation answering field calls and Stewart handling the administration adds efficiency, maybe those overtime hours will come down.

Each of the supervisors said they believed these points to be true before approving Downey's raise on March 10.

Downey said technological efficiencies that came as a part of the consolidation are already yielding some results, and he expects to see overtime hours come down. "We've been able to spread the workload out," he said, adding that he's also considering revising work schedules in an effort to cut down on after-hours calls. "The overtime issue should be more manageable now," Downey said. "We're not waking up people in the middle of the night as we have in the past."

One can argue that Downey is taking on extra responsibilities and should be paid accordingly. The county staff report notes that the compensation plan approved by the board for elected officials provides a "process for evaluating additional compensation for department heads based on changes in responsibility." It could even be argued that the 10 percent bump is a bargain, as a Journal analysis of similar sized counties back in September found that sheriff-coroners made an average of about $26,000 more than their sheriff counterparts.

But one could also argue that the county staff report was at best oversimplifying and at worst misleading when it stated: "Elimination of the coroner-public administrator position saved $8,715 monthly. On Feb. 10, your board approved an additional allocation for a Deputy Sheriff I/II, which will cost approximately $4,887 monthly at top step. Even with additional compensation for the sheriff, there is still a net savings to the county through the consolidation of offices."

The board's March 10 meeting was markedly different than one a few weeks earlier in which it bickered over whether to give Interim County Counsel Carolyn Ruth a pay increase while she holds the post. Supervisors expressed concerns over "pension spiking" and long-term costs. Almost to a member, the board said the decision about Downey's pay increase was different. And many of the particulars of Ruth and Downey's situations are different, though both saw potential pay increases come before the board in the twilight of their careers due to unforeseen circumstances. (Ruth wound up getting half the raise requested on her behalf.)

And where was Parris for this discussion about his predecessor's compensation less than 40 days after his official retirement from county employment? Presumably he was at his post-retirement, full-time job at the new federal courthouse in McKinleyville, where he works for a third-party staffing firm under the direction of the U.S. Marshals Service.

Rabbits with Habits

By Grant Scott-Goforth

grant@northcoastjournal.com

Former pothead turned Libertarian wunderkind Rand Paul (who dresses like his dad — yikes) is attempting to brand himself as the great emancipator of rich white college kids, co-authoring senate legislation that would relax the Fed's stance on marijuana.

The bill, which is being introduced by Paul and East Coast Democrat senators Cory Booker and Kirsten Gillibrand, would downgrade weed's Schedule 1 status with the Drug Enforcement Agency, making it more available for researchers and doctors who recommend pot to veterans, according to the Washington Post. It would also allow pot businesses to use banks in states where those businesses have been legalized.

Paul (who looks like he's a Solo cup away from a kegger in press photos) is by no means a social liberal, but the potential Republican presidential candidate may be seeking the support of weed enthusiasts who are seeing broadening legalization around the country and who could make marijuana an important presidential platform in 2016. He has come out in support of states' rights to legalize marijuana, but bashed the use of it, despite his admitted history of puffing tough.

"I personally think that marijuana use is not healthy," Paul told the Las Vegas Sun a couple years ago. "People that use it chronically have a loss of IQ and a loss of ambition."

Hear that, long hair? Put down the bong, pick up a copy of The Fountainhead and you could be on your way to political stardom.

Humboldt officials joined five other Northern California counties in a summit March 5 to come up with a unified marijuana policy, the Times-Standard reports.

The local governments shared one major interest: local control. By uniting, organizers said, the small, rural counties have a better chance of influencing anticipated legislation on medical and recreational marijuana in the next few years. It was agreed, the T-S reporter Will Houston wrote, that individual counties should be able to control taxation and cultivation, rather than let Sacramento impose uniform standards over the diverse array of California counties.

Medical marijuana is legal in New York, but some Jewish would-be patients who keep kosher are stuck — the state's health department doesn't allow patients to smoke pot, and while the state's Jewish Orthodox Union supports medical marijuana, cannabis laden edibles haven't caught on in the orthodox community because they're not kosher. That's expected to change soon, as the Daily Mail reports the Orthodox Union's kosher certification agency is in discussions with edibles manufacturers to produce kosher ganja food by next year.

DEA agent Matt Fairbanks may scale mountains as part of a paramilitary marijuana eradication team, but the guy's got a soft side.

At a hearing before the Utah State Senate in late February, Fairbanks spoke against a movement to legalize medical marijuana in the state with an anecdote: During a raid on a mountainside grow, he encountered a bunny that, having grown accustomed to munching on the abundant marijuana plants, had become listless, foregoing all rabbitly ambitions.

"Deforestation has left marijuana grows with even rabbits that had cultivated a taste for the marijuana," the Guardian reports Fairbanks testifying. "One of them refused to leave us, and we took all the marijuana around him, but his natural instincts to run were somehow gone."

The tale (which joined Fairbanks' other concerns about environmental damage) earned at least one Monty Python reference from a medical marijuana advocate in attendance, and an admonishing line from Guardian writer Alan Yuhas:

"... While rabbits and other wild creatures can suffer the effects of chemical inebriation, they remain unable to communicate with humans even on their sober days, and incapable of expressing even to experienced DEA agents exactly the degree of their high."

The lives of elephant seals

Story and photos by Mark Larson

A throwdown between two males might be physical or all talk and posturing to conserve energy.

Back in the mid-1990s, on a late February drive on U.S. Highway 1 near Big Sur, I saw a strange sight ahead of me. A very large adult elephant seal was crossing the highway to reach the nearby dunes. I pulled over to investigate and when I looked down at the Piedras Blancas beach above the surf line, I was surprised to see at very close range hundreds of adult elephant seals, along with many rotund baby seals who looked like over-inflated footballs.

The elephant seals had been expanding their range north for decades and began arriving at this beach in 1990, with the first pup born in 1992. Once hunted to near extinction (their population was estimated at fewer than 50) in the 18th and 19th centuries for oil from their blubber, the seals received protection from hunting in Mexico and the United States in the early 20th century. Thanks to those regulations, as well as the emergence of kerosene and refined oil, their population has rebounded to around 175,000 today.

In fact, their comeback has been so robust that they are now regular visitors to the North Coast. Professor Dawn Goley, an expert in marine mammals at Humboldt State University, said a young adult male was recently seen at the beach below the Seascope restaurant in Trinidad. She said the unusual number of recent local sightings might be attributed to it being an El Niño year, meaning Pacific waters are warmer than average off the North Coast.

"We do have elephant seals that breed here locally," Goley said, "but they don't play a large role in our local marine ecosystem. When out in a boat offshore here, you will often see them resting at the surface, with their heads sticking up out of the water.

"The only rookery [breeding ground] is at Castle Rock, offshore from Crescent City, and you need a spotting scope or binoculars to see them," Goley said. "Their reproductive rates are not very high or successful at that location, due to the high seas and other factors. As a result, the weaned pups are often found starving on the beaches near Crescent City." Rescued pups are often taken to the Northcoast Marine Mammal Center in Crescent City.

Goley said molting elephant seals also often come up on local beaches in other seasons, looking sickly to onlookers due to the large patches of shedding skin and hair. She cautioned that while elephant seals can appear docile on the beach, they're quite big and can cover long distances in a very short time.

North Coasters have to travel to see them up close and within camera range due to the inaccessibility of the Castle Rock rookery.

On a visit to Piedras Blancas in February, I found the elephant seal rookery beaches lined with fences and boardwalks for the hundreds of tourists and photographers who stop to observe these most unusual-looking marine mammals. The bellowing of the huge adult males fighting or posturing over breeding rights assaulted my ears, along with loud cries from the large number of adult females and hungry seal pups looking to find their mothers and nurse. Sea birds and crows filled the air and patrolled the beach.

On one warm, sunny morning, the elephant seals spent most of the time napping in the sand, occasionally flipping dry sand over themselves. A dominant, or alpha, male could be seen dozing off, but apparently with one eye open for lower ranking males seeking to mate with a harem member in estrus. When that happened, the massive male would move remarkably quickly toward the intruder and all sorts of bellowing and posturing would result. The less-dominant male typically would quickly retreat in front of this onslaught. But occasionally it would lead to the males slamming their long necks and heads into each other and their bodies showed scars from prior battles.

Male and female elephant seals lead very different lives throughout the year.

The adult male seals arrive at the rookery in late November and early December to battle over a portion of the beach. The clashes can be physical, with slamming bodies and slashing teeth, but to reduce injuries and avoid wasting energy (they won't eat for the next two months), many simply involve posturing and vocalized threats. The males, which can grow to 5,000 pounds and 15 feet long, lose around 40 percent of their weight during breeding season before returning to the ocean to eat for the next nine months. Only males grow the "elephant" proboscis (its nose), which begins to appear after puberty in year five.

The females, already pregnant, then arrive at the rookery in mid-December to give birth and form the harems. Recent research shows that the females choose the beach location with its dominant male, rather than the males choosing the females. The fertilized egg carried by a female isn't implanted in the uterus (to develop a fetus) until after the female returns to the rookery to molt hair and a layer of skin in May. The females then return to the ocean for seven to eight months in a row before returning to the rookery to give birth.

Elephant seal pups are born in late January or February and weigh around 70 pounds, measuring 3 feet long. The pups and mothers vocalize to form a bond, which is useful when finding one another on a crowded rookery beach. Pups nurse for four weeks on mother's milk rich with fat (it's 12 percent fat at the start and increases to 60 percent at the end), quadrupling the offspring's weight to around 300 pounds. The fasting mother loses twice as much weight as the pup gains. After week four, the mother goes into estrus, mates several times (a dangerous time for the pups, which are prone to being crushed by the huge males) and heads to sea, leaving the weaned pup behind. Typically in March, the "weaners" then begin entering the sheltered rocky tide pools for "play time," building their muscle, swimming and diving skills and endurance, and losing some of their buoyant baby fat. When ready, they head to sea to forage for food and eventually return to the rookery in October and November.

Only males grow the “elephant” proboscis (long nose), which contains resonant chambers that generate low-frequency sounds for communication.

The sub-adult males return to molt in the summer months, followed by the adult males in August and September.

Goley said a recent discovery found the elephant seals' unusual "elephant" proboscis contains resonant chambers that generate low-frequency sounds used for communication. The seals are super-sensitive not only to these low-frequency sounds in the air while on the beach, but also to vibrations in the beach sand — another reason to avoid human or vehicle disturbances.

Research going on at University of California at Santa Cruz had Goley enthused. She said researchers are attaching telemetry devices to the deep-diving seals to collect a wide variety of data via satellites on ocean conditions. Scientists are getting much better insight into oceanographic research variables this way, compared to sending humans out on boats.

"The tagged seals are functioning in kind of an ambassador role as ocean sensors," Goley said, "and giving us insights we've never had before." ●

THE SETLIST

WHO: Alice DiMichele

WHEN: Friday, March 13 at 7 p.m.

WHERE: Beginnings Octagon

TICKETS: $25 donation

Welcome to this week, which, like many weeks, features a variety of sounds to please, challenge and motivate you. What a grand time to live.

Thursday: Be open

Starting things off, you've got the inherently fascinating Red Rumsey, brain-child of Oly's Vern Rumsey, best known for his seminal, post-hardcore '90s band, Unwound. During that decade it released eight albums and toured internationally with Sonic Youth, Nirvana, Fugazi and Mogwai. Rumsey has also played in Fitz of Depression, Blonde Redhead, Oslo and Flora v. Fauna. Decent resume, right?

Rumsey and Courtney Jaxon of the Monster Women and Lost Luvs continue the spirit of collaboration and experimentation at the Siren's Song, starting at 8 p.m. This show is all ages and is free.

Thursday: Be intoxicated

Brooklyn sax-and-drums dance music trio Moon Hooch performs at Humboldt Brews in support of the band's second album, This Is Cave Music. The album reached the top 10 of Billboard's jazz chart, largely, word has it, on the strength of on-tour sales as the band floored audiences nationwide with masterful, frenetic shows. The "cave music" label stems from Moon Hooch's organic approach to playing electronic dance music. Tickets are $15, show starts at 9:30 p.m. and is 21-and-over. (Note: I had This Is Cave Music running in the background while writing this here "Setlist" and everyone else in the room agreed, "This is great!") attle's five-piece electro-funk, sci-fi swap pop unit Cannabidroids does the latter at the Jambalaya, along with DJ Statex and some "surprise" Humboldt County artists. Expect excitement of the most futuristic funk punk fusion type. Cover is $5, doors at 9 p.m., show is 21-and-over.

Friday:

Be magnanimous

Down in Briceland, revered folk-enviro-singer Alice DiMichele also celebrates the release of a new album, Swim, with a benefit for Skyfish School's music program at Beginnings Octagon, with special guests Francine Allen & Delaney. A dinner at 6 p.m. is followed by music at 7 p.m. Suggested donation is $25, call Beginnings for more information at 923-3617.

Over at Hum Brews, San Francisco's self-described "Ambassadors of Gypsy Rock" Diego's Umbrella will provide a poppy blend of klezmer, flamenco and punk rock for a mere $15. Show starts at 9:30 p.m. and is 21-and-over.

Saturday: Be seduced

Humboldt's very own outlaws Cliff Dallas & The Death Valley Troubadours would like to carry you down the dusty roads of the Wild West at the Palm Lounge. Opening act Electro Saloon features Strix Vega's Colin Begell and Alanna Powell of Mad River Rose making music that's heavy on the strings and light on the heart.

Powell's also involved in another project of note, an exponentially more visual one put together by photographer Chuck Johnson, "musicians exposed." Check out Johnson's Freak Photo Facebook page for an early peek at the nude series featuring Humboldt County musicians. And their instruments.

Tuesday (St. Paddy's Day): Be Irish

Look, I strive to make all days a celebration in some form or another, but St. Patrick's Day is annoying for a couple reasons: a) the inevitable amateur night atmosphere that takes over; and b) snakes are amazing and cool and people shouldn't be driving them out unless you're doing restoration work involving invasive species and songbirds or some related thing. Please at least drink good whiskey and skip the Irish Car Bombs, would you?

Annual lecture over, let's move on to a holiday-themed show we can get behind. The Rebel Liberties, a Flogging Molly cover band, plays at the Lil' Red Lion. Music at 9 p.m., cover is $3, show is 21-and-over.

A Beautiful Life

Roger Cinnamond's paintings
at Westhaven Gallery

By Kate Haley

artbeat@northcoastjournal.com

When you walk into the gallery, the first thing you notice is the colors — every hue in the spectrum represented. As you stand at a distance and take in multiple pieces at once, there is a momentary sense of being in the middle of a prism, light refracting in a rainbow around you. Suddenly, a specific work catches your eye and you step closer, drawn in by an image that speaks to you. As you focus, the details become clearer, each layer revealing itself to compose a story for you to interpret. The work is abstract and immersive. Each piece speaks and what you take away from a first viewing may not be what you gain from your second. Such is the gift of the late artist and educator Roger Cinnamond's work, on display now through April at the Westhaven Center for the Arts. The show, Remembering Roger is made possible through the generous donation of over 150 of the artist's works by his wife Jane Cinnamond.

Speaking with Jane by phone, she describes Roger as someone who was "always involved with the creative process." In each of their homes, including a beloved property in Hawkins Bar, the couple shared an art studio where he spent much of his time. However, it was with his students during his 38 years of teaching that he did much of his work. He was a passionate educator, inspiring students not only at Arcata and McKinleyville high schools, College of the Redwoods and Humboldt State University, but also through his support of the children's art calendar produced by the Friends of the Redwood Libraries. Roger was a passionate creator, working in multiple media, including photography, acrylic and serigraphy (screen printing, with a separate screen for each color in the image). A favorite medium was narrative collage. In his later years, Jane says, much of his work took on a spiritual theme.

Ann Anderson of Westhaven Center for the Arts explains how this showing of Roger's work came about through a series of conversations with Jane during their painting group. Jane donated a large and diverse collection of Roger's work. A few pieces will ultimately find homes in the permanent collection of the Morris Graves Museum, but the majority of pieces are available to the public for suggested donations ranging from $20 to over $100 for some larger works. Ann makes specific note of the variety of the pieces in both subject and size; everything from detailed colored pencil drawings to abstract collage, with some pieces as large as 3-feet square. One included work is a serigraph entitled "The Alignment of the Forces." From a distance, it evokes primary colors and sacred geometry. Upon closer review, further layers are revealed: a hand holding a staff, a stegosaurus, Egyptian hieroglyphics, Wonder Woman. Rather than overwhelming, it is bright, captivating and engaging. It is art you want to spend more time with, to share with friends so you can learn what they see.

This special show runs through the end of April and is an opportunity for friends and former students to remember Roger and the deep impact he had on the community. For those who did not have the pleasure of knowing him, it is a beautiful introduction to his impressive body of work. The funds raised from the donations will go to support the Westhaven Center for the Arts, which is a volunteer-run, nonprofit organization.

Westhaven Center for the Arts is located at 501 South Westhaven Drive in Trinidad. The gallery is open Friday through Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. For more information call 677-9493 or visit www.westhavencenter.org.

THE BOILING OF THE GREEN.

March is a difficult month. No longer winter and not yet spring, it is a kind of limbo in which the promise of spring may be curbed suddenly by bites of cold. The memory of cherry tomatoes exploding juicily in my teeth is as faint as Big Bang's echo. Counting the months that separate me from the next basket of those edible gems or golden zucchini blossoms or pastel peas is depressing. I have a treasure of frozen peaches, berries and strained roasted tomatoes to keep me from despairing ("Tomatoes as Comfort Food," Oct. 6, 2011), but March still feels like a long march in a stark landscape.

Thanks, Mother Earth, for chard and kale! The fact that those leafy greens are available year-round may tempt us to dismiss them as unexciting, a sort of background noise that never coalesces into a melody. But their intense green spanning the range from brilliant yellow chard to dark Tuscan kale means there is a green for every mood. Better yet, mixing various shades of green yields a pleasant chorus of voices singing in the kitchen.

And that's mostly what I like to do with rainbow chard from our local farmers and kale from my serendipitous vegetable patch. A few years ago, when I first decided to grow some food in our yard, I planted a few rows of red Russian kale seedlings. They did well, providing me with a bountiful harvest of gray-green leaves in exchange for intermittent care. I let some plants go to seed and those seeds sprouted the next harvest. I've harvested kale almost continuously ever since.

I love watching the tiny, lacy leaves sprout on their purple stems. Thinning a small patch means I have baby kale available. Later on, I harvest larger leaves regularly. And when the plants are nearing the end of their cycle, I harvest kale blossoms. Kale is a constant gift.

My chard does not grow as exuberantly. I have a few plants and harvest small leaves to enrich a frittata or a savory tart. I rely on local farmers to provide large leaves and tall stalks, the latter going into a gratin ("Charmed by Chard," June 9, 2011), one of my favorite side dishes.

I am always on the lookout for ideas that allow me to use them in large quantities. Enter caldo verde, a traditional Portuguese soup, often referred to as Portuguese kale soup. The name means "green broth," but to my Italian ears it is "green warmth," which makes the dish even more appealing on a chilly evening.

Traditionally, the soup includes potatoes and Portuguese sausages (chouriço or linguiça). My personal taste veers towards vegetables, so in my recipe you will find no sausages, but shiitake mushrooms and carrots keeping company to potatoes. I mix kale with chard and, if possible, I supplement the homegrown red Russian with some Tuscan kale. The result is a thick, green-marbled soup with a layered flavor, which, come to think about it, could be a nice addition to the St. Patrick's Day table.

Green Soup

Serves 4-6

Ingredients and method:

- 1 large leek, white and light green portion, sliced into half-moons and thoroughly rinsed
- 3 medium shallots, chopped
- 1/3 pound fresh shiitake mushrooms,

Make It Green

Vegi-centric caldo verde

By Simona Carini

tabletalk@northcoastjournal.com

- cleaned, caps thinly sliced and stems minced (I have also used a mix of shiitake and black trumpet mushrooms)
- 1/2 pound potatoes (like Yukon Gold), well scrubbed and diced
- 1/2 pound carrots, well scrubbed, skin scraped, trimmed, and thinly sliced (if you have a mandoline, this is the perfect job for it)
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 cups light chicken stock or vegetable broth
- 3 cups water
- Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste (taking into account the saltiness of the stock/broth)
- 3/4 pound kale and rainbow chard (see below for quantity details)
- A generous squeeze of fresh Meyer lemon juice

Warm up the olive oil in a soup pot, add the leek and shallots and stir well. Cook gently for 5 minutes, stirring often. Add the garlic and stir. Cook gently for 2 minutes.

Add the mushrooms to the pot and stir. After 1 minute, cover the pot. Continue cooking for 4 minutes, stirring every now and then.

Add the potatoes and carrots to the pot and stir well. Add the bay leaf, stock/broth and water. Bring the pot to a boil and cook gently until the potatoes and carrots are tender and easily smashed with the back of a spoon, 30 minutes or so.

While the soup cooks, wash the greens and separate the leaves from the stems. (Set aside the chard stems and make a gratin or something else with them.) Spread a large leaf on the cutting board (chard works best in this role), then layer 5-7 leaves of either kale or chard on top of it. Start rolling from the base of the leaves and make a tight bundle. Hold the roll with one hand and with the other cut as-thin-as-you-can slices across.

Season the soup with salt and pepper, to taste. Remove the bay leaf. Process the soup with an immersion blender, leaving some texture. Bring soup back to a boil.

Add as much of the pile of cut greens as the soup and your tastes can handle. Simmer until the greens are tender, 3-5 minutes. Add the Meyer lemon juice and stir well.

Add salt and pepper to taste and serve. Need I mention how healthy and nutritious it is? ●

Drunk/Social Historian

Kyle Kinane would fit right in at any of Humboldt County's dive bars. Saunter into the Alibi or the Shanty any afternoon and pick out a soft spoken, bearded, tattooed guy in a T-shirt and his 30s.

It's precisely that — his relatability, his aggressive averageness, his humility — which makes the Los Angeles-based comedian so hilarious.

Kinane has cultivated a style of self-deprecating storytelling that has no equal in modern stand-up. He spins long, rambling tales about drunken encounters, pants-shitting episodes and embarrassing food choices, punctuated with wit and a wise-beyond-his-years beat sensibility.

In a recent Grantland article, Kinane was described by a friend as a folk hero, a seemingly fitting honorific for the hard-working, self-made everyman who offers so much of himself in his sets.

But Kinane, talking on the phone as he sped down a Myrtle Beach highway recently, balked at the title.

"I would say that's a bit indulgent," he said, his voice a calm antithesis to his loud and guttural onstage delivery. "I'm more of a social historian."

In the years and years of touring that his stand-up comedy success both requires and perpetuates, Kinane's observations have fueled his work. "That's what a lot of comics do: travel, collect stories and report back on the human condition," he said. "I'm a culturally investigative journalist."

He's also self-reflective and not afraid to shame himself or people close to him. In his most recent album, I Liked His Old Stuff Better, Kinane painfully describes his awkward and unsettling early sexual encounters in the Chicago suburbs and paints a fantastic scene of his parents driving from store to store trying to find a copy of a recent interview he did with Hustler. [Mr. and Mrs. Kinane, if you're reading this, we'll send you a copy.]

It's uniquely cringe-inducing and sympathetic — and uproarious.

Kinane's star is rising — his first hour-long Comedy Central special recently aired and he's touring in support of his third album, but he's not resting on his laurels.

"I'm always hesitant to acknowledge any 'you've made it' moments," he said. "It's not like I got elected into a position. I could disappear from this whole scene in a year."

Kinane beautifully wrangled an inattentive and occasionally boisterous crowd at a set in Arcata two years ago. But generally, he says, his audiences are less rowdy than some. They drink, sure. He does too.

And while he's well aware of our county's agricultural reputation ("I know what you're about, Humboldt County" he rumbled), it's not as much of a draw as Arcata's mountain biking trails.

Kinane's "not particularly a pot guy." Sure, he's got a 215 card — "If you live in California you're gonna have a weed card," he said. "You don't live on a lake and not own a boat."

Catch Kinane live at Humboldt Brews on Tuesday, March 17 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $14 and, sorry kids, you gotta be 21.

Unfinished needs work, Chappie breaks ranks

UNFINISHED BUSINESS. R-rated comedy a risky medium. Keeping all the dirty language, nudity and questionable subject matter automatically shuts out a broad swath of ticket buyers: everybody under 17 and everybody else who prefers their comedy clean, thank you very much. The risk can pay off, though, as a more catholic approach to storytelling and joke-telling is more apt to generate surprises and laughs. (I realize not everybody wants new. When, in the trailer for Paul Blart 2, Kevin James bounced off a plate glass window, I thought the roof was coming off the theater.) I should know better by now, but a comedy with the potential for some grown-folks stuff in it still compels me. Given my generally strong, lately shaken confidence in Vince Vaughn and newfound liking for Dave Franco, I figured Unfinished Business had a fair shot at funny. And it is funny, in fits and starts. It's also burdened by excess plot elements and a dearth of originality.

Dan Trunkman (Vaughn), learning that his most productive year has earned him a 5 percent pay cut, seizes his own Jerry Maguire moment. He walks away jobless, accompanied by Tim (Tom Wilkinson), a fellow former rep recently fired based on his age, and a good natured simpleton named Mike Pancake (Franco), who happened to be there on a failed job interview. With Dan at the helm, they set out to beat his former employer in the exciting world of industrial mineral waste brokerage. (What they actually do is obscured by top-sheet circumlocution, but they appear to sell metal shavings). After a year of hard work for little reward, the promise of a major deal sends the boys to Berlin, ostensibly to shake hands and sign contracts. As it turns out, Dan's mean-spirited former boss Chuck (Sienna Miller) is in the mix, and their certain payday turns into a street fight. All the while, Dan's trying to FaceTime

The Middle of Everything

A little history: The art of using masks in theater dates back to ancient Greece and the worship of Dionysus (you know, the fun one). Followers would don crude coverings to embody gods in rituals. (The Greek term for mask is persona; masks were worn to "personify.") Playwrights Thespis, Aeschylus and Euripides used masks to portray multiple personalities or to illustrate both tragedy and comedy. Blue Lake's own Dell'Arte School teaches the Italian form of commedia dell'arte, which became popular in the 15th century and leans on masks heavily.

Especially for children, wordless, visual storytelling with masks is magical and speaks directly to their emotions. And so, the Arcata Playhouse begins the ninth season of its Family Fun Series with The Middle of Everything, by Portland-based theater troupe, Wonderheads (co-founded by three graduates of Dell'Arte), on Friday, Mar. 13 at 7 p.m. and continuing Saturday, Mar. 14 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. ($12, $10). It's the story of a girl and a man and their fantastical journey through time and space. The cast performs in full-face mask, using movement and craft to engage the audience and ignite imaginations. This timeless art form with larger-than-life characters makes for a perfect evening for families and kids of all ages.

co-parent with his overworked wife (June Diane Raphael). Their adolescent son is the target of bullying, their younger daughter is getting in fights, and the cure-all of private school (!) depends on Dan's successfully negotiating the Berlin deal. In the background, Tim and Mike indulge their various interests, chemically, sexually and otherwise. Nick Frost pops up in a charming, if misguided cameo.

The root problem with Unfinished Business is its lack of cohesion. It forcefully insists on its hard-R rating, down to a graphic glory-hole sequence that never goes anywhere. At the same time, it tries for warm-hearted family comedy, taking on absentee parenting, bullying and upper-middle-class hardships. Or rather, it attempts to take on those prickly subjects. In the end, it does little more than make mention and move on without resolution or enough genuine laughs. R. 91m.

CHAPPIE. Some might say that writer/director Neill Blomkamp (District 9, Elysium) has gone too far down the rabbit hole of his chosen genre. Each of his movies has used effects-driven science fiction to explore themes of social inequity, racism and the progression of technology. You know, the kind of stuff to which sci-fi is best suited, especially in an era where the genre has been all but subsumed by comic-book tent-poles and uninspired horror. Ignore those naysayers; Blomkamp can keep right on doing what he's doing, as far as I'm concerned.

What he's doing now, with Chappie, is taking on the notion of the Singularity (as I understand it, the moment when humanity and technology become indistinguishable) and the definition of the soul. In near-future Johannesburg, a pioneering tech company has brought to market the world's first robot police officers. These "Scouts," developed primarily by engineer Deon Wilson (Dev Patel), have effectively reduced violent crime in the city and preserved the lives of countless police officers. Their success has also curtailed the progress of a parallel program, spear-headed by soldier turned engineer Vincent Moore (Hugh Jackman), a gun-toting Christian with a bitching haircut. This professional rivalry puts Deon in Vincent's cross-hairs, a situation that escalates when Deon uses a scrap Scout chassis as a test bed for his nascent artificial intelligence software. The result is a sentient robot named Chappie (Sharlto Copley) with childlike impressionability. This tendency leads him to fall in with a hard-luck trio of street criminals (Ninja and Yo-landi Visser of Die Antwoord, along with Jose Pablo Castillo) who become his surrogate family, and eventually get him into pretty serious trouble.

THE BOTTOMS ALWAYS SMELL LIKE THIS.

Like Blomkamp's previous work, Chappie is defined by near-flawless visual effects, brisk editing, distinctive visual style and slightly heavy handed 21st century moralizing. In this case, he casts Christians as out-moded villains, and posits that consciousness is empirically definable and transferrable. It's an interesting, divisive theme, and one that could probably have used a little refining in this context. Nonetheless, I enjoyed the effort from start to finish, and found myself especially taken with Copley's tragically kind-hearted little robot. R. 120m.

Previews

CINDERELLA. Live-action fairytale fantasy with Cate Blanchett making wicked stepmothers look good. PG. 113m.

RUN ALL NIGHT. Liam Neeson brooding and killing in a father-son hitman movie with Ed Harris. R. 114m.

SECOND BEST EXOTIC MARIGOLD HOTEL. Maggie Smith and Judy Dench are back for the sequel as Brits abroad. PG. 124m.

Continuing

AMERICAN SNIPER. Bradley Cooper plays a Navy SEAL in an intense and moving biopic/war movie that doles out adrenaline and domestic devastation in equal measure. R. 132m.

BIRDMAN. Back after swooping up all the Oscars. Excellent weirdness as a former superhero franchise star (ahem, Michael Keaton) grasps at a second act. While his character struggles, Keaton clearly still has his chops. R. 120m.

THE DUFF. Teen makeover comedy about a girl (Mae Whitman) who finds out she's the Designated Ugly Fat Friend in her group. It's like Mean Girls never even happened. PG13. 101m.

FIFTY SHADES OF GREY. The real torture is the muddled characters and blush-worthy story. If you came for more than a little slap and tickle, use your safe word and bail. R. 125m.

FOCUS. A charismatic Will Smith plays a con man in a paint-by-number heist movie with some fun moments and too few surprises. R. 104m.

JUPITER ASCENDING. Gorgeous trademark visuals and a wreck of a story from the siblings Wachowski. With Mila Kunis, Channing Tatum and a stylishly villainous Eddie Redmayne. PG13. 127m.

KINGSMAN: THE SECRET SERVICE. Funny, charming Taron Egerton steals the show in this imaginative action comedy about a street punk who becomes a spy. With Colin Firth and Samuel Jackson. R. 128m.

THE LAZARUS EFFECT. Nothing new in this rushed and redundant raising-the-dead horror retread. Even the talented cast feels crowded by characters with nothing to contribute. PG13. 83m.

MCFARLAND USA. The story about a cross-country coach (Kevin Costner) hits all the marks so that even the expected triumphs yield a few tears. PG. 128m.

THE SPONGEBOB MOVIE: SPONGE OUT OF WATER. He of the square pants leads his undersea crew onto land in this animation and live action mash-up. PG. 93m.

STILL ALICE. Julianne Moore plays a linguistics professor losing her mind to Alzheimer's Disease. With Alec Baldwin. PG13. 101m.

The total amount secured by said instrument as of the time of initial publication of this notice is stated above, which includes the total amount of the unpaid balance (including accrued and unpaid interest) and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of initial publication of this notice. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call the trustee's information line at 530-246-2727 or visit this Internet Web site: calforeclosures.biz, using the file number assigned to this case: SS # 14-2096. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Date: 2/23/15 FORECLOSURE SPECIALISTS LLC 1388 Court Street, Ste C Redding, CA 96001 530-246-2727, Toll Free: 844-333-6766, Trustee Sale Officer Foreclosure Specialists LLC is assisting the Beneficiary in collecting a debt. LƯU Ý: KÈM THEO ĐÂY LÀ BẢN TRÌNH BÀY TÓM LƯỢC VỀ THÔNG TIN TRONG TÀI LIỆU NÀY

YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED August 26, 2007. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE, IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on April 6, 2015, at the hour of 10:30 a.m., on the steps to the front entrance to the County Courthouse, located at 825 5th Street, City of Eureka, County of Humboldt, State of California, PRIME PACIFIC, a corporation, as Trustee will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, check drawn by state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state, all payable at the time of sale, real property situated in the County of Humboldt, State of California, and the purported address is 8750 Wilder Ridge Road, Garberville, CA (APN: 108-022-005-000), and is more particularly described in the Deed of Trust referenced below.

Directions may be obtained pursuant to a written request submitted to the beneficiary: RAY RAPHAEL, Trustee; MARIE JEANNE RAPHAEL, Trustee; WENDY ANNE FETZER; CAROL VILLAIRE, c/o Selzer Home Loans, 551 S. Orchard Avenue, Ukiah, CA 95482, telephone: (707) 462-4000 or by contacting the Trustee, Prime Pacific at (707) 468-5300 or mailing request to Prime Pacific, P.O. Box 177, Ukiah, CA 95482 - within 10 days from the first publication of this notice.

If a street address or common designation of property is shown in this notice, no warranty is given as to its completeness or correctness. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address and other common designation, if any, shown herein.

The total amount of the unpaid obligation, together with reasonable estimate of the costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this notice is $304,729.29. It is possible that at the time of sale the opening bid may be less than the total indebtedness due.

The sale will be made without covenant or warranty of title, possession, or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of the sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust, all advances thereunder, interest provided therein, and fees, charges and expenses of the trustee. The Deed of Trust was executed by PETER JAMES PROFANT and ALEXANDRA PROFANT, Trustees of The Profant Family Trust dated August 10, 2000, as the original Trustor, to RICHARD P. SELZER, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of RAY RAPHAEL and MARIE JEANNE RAPHAEL, Trustees of the Ray and Marie Jeanne Raphael 2006 Living Trust dated August 10, 2006, as to an undivided 33.5% interest; NEIL SYLVAN RAPHAEL, a single man and KELLI HARDCASTLE, a single woman, as joint tenants as to an undivided 33.5% interest; CAROL K. VILLAIRE, an unmarried woman, as to an undivided 25% interest and WENDY ANNE FETZER, an unmarried woman, as to an undivided 8% interest, as Beneficiary, dated August 26, 2007, and recorded September 11, 2007, in Document No. 2007-27180-7, Official Records of Humboldt County, and said property will be sold "as is" and no warranty or representation is made concerning its present condition.

PRIME PACIFIC was substituted as trustee under that certain document recorded April 14, 2010, in Document No. 2010-7733-4, Official Records of Humboldt County. The address and telephone number of the trustee is: PRIME PACIFIC, Post Office Box 177, 215 W. Standley Street, #3, Ukiah, California 95482; Telephone: (707) 468-5300. Notice of Default and election to sell the described real property under the mentioned deed of trust was recorded on January 23, 2014, Document No. 2014-001415-4, Official Records of Humboldt County.

The name, address, and telephone number of the Beneficiary (or Beneficiary's agent) at whose request this sale is to be conducted is: RAY RAPHAEL, Trustee; MARIE JEANNE RAPHAEL, Trustee; WENDY ANNE FETZER; CAROL VILLAIRE, c/o Selzer Home Loans, 551 S. Orchard Avenue, Ukiah, CA 95482, telephone: (707) 462-4000.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call PRIME PACIFIC at (707) 468-5300. You may also visit our website - primepacificforeclosures.com. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the website. THE BEST WAY TO VERIFY POSTPONEMENT INFORMATION IS TO ATTEND THE SCHEDULED SALE.

The mortgagee or beneficiary is not required to give notice under CA Civil Code Section 2923.5.

WEITCHPEC LAND/ PROPERTY $275,000

TURN KEY! This ±20 acre parcel is just what you are looking for! Amazing sun with this south facing property featuring 2 newly built cabins and a barn, water storage tanks connected to the fully developed, year round water. Two nicely developed flats, fruit trees and more. No electricity to cabins but not far away at road.

NEW LISTING!

RUTH LAKE LAND/PROP- ERTY $185,000

This beautiful and very remote ±160 acre property features high elevation, abundant supply of water, great development site with southern exposure. Roads provide good access throughout the property. You must see this lot to truly appreciate what it has to offer.

CRESCENT CITY LAND/PROPERTY $750,000

Beautiful, one of a kind property bordering Trees of Mystery and Six Rivers National Forest, located just off Highway 101!

This unique parcel boasts flat open meadows, power, old growth Spruce and White Fir Forests, and Wilson Creek running through it. Situated just a short walk to the beach makes this parcel very desirable!

GARBERVILLE SINGLE FAMILY HOME $595,000

This gorgeous and completely remodeled 3 bd/3ba home overlooks

Garberville with views. The home features vaulted ceilings, marble floors, and granite counter tops, beautiful top of the line stainless steel kitchen appliances, state-of-the-art home stereo system, Jacuzzi tub in the master bedroom, walk-in closets, mahogany doors and cabinets, attached heated two car garage, and much more. In town but private with gated access. Enjoy the higher quality of living. Owner may carry with substantial down payment.
